

THE UNIVERSE IS VIEWED BY AN ASTRONOMER

Professor Gillson Presents Astronomy's
Idea Of Life

FIRST OF SERIES

Many McGill Students Attend Young People's Forum
At Y. M. C. A.

McGill students and co-eds, the latter in many cases accompanied by the former, helped to crowd Association Hall at Central Y.M.C.A., Drummond Street, yesterday afternoon in the occasion of Professor Gillson's address before the Young People's Forum. The Astronomer's view of the World was the theme of this lecture, the first of a series on "Science, Philosophy and the Modern World."

Illustrating his remarks by lantern slides, Professor Gillson first gave an account of the evolution of ideas on astronomy, then presented a few of the facts of the universe as revealed by modern science. And in view of these relations, it was the speaker's belief that if religion was to continue to be a great factor in human life it must be regarded as a natural phenomenon in man. There has been and must continue to be an evolution in religion just as there has been in the construction of the universe. True religion must picture the unifying force which flows through the whole universe.

The science of Astronomy first came into prominence as the religion of Astrology in the early Babylonian civilization, when stellar bodies and constellations were worshipped as gods. It was at this time that the days of the week received the names they now bear, their belief was that man was the centre of the universe, and that the gods, the heavenly bodies and the abode of the blessed encircled him in consecutive spheres, all created for his especial benefit. They had then a three-storied universe rather than the more modern one consisting of two stories and a basement.

The speaker traced the development of scientific knowledge up to modern times—Copernicus who computed that the sun rather than man was the centre of the universe; Galileo whose invention of the telescope has made the surface of the moon known to science; and Isaac Newton who discovered the law of universal gravitation; Halley and his theories on comets; J. C. Adams' discovery of Neptune; Einstein and his theory of relativity—all were reviewed by the lecturer in an interesting and often humorous way.

The immensity of the universe was graphically illustrated. Our own earth is some 8000 miles in diameter. The sun is 750,000 miles in diameter. But the average star is four or five hundred times as large as the sun. And there is some two or three thousand million of these stellar bodies. Notwithstanding the immense speed of light, it is more than 3000 light-years across the known universe. There earth is a mere speck in a world of such dimensions.

How did all this come into existence? The theory is that an immense mass of gaseous substance rotating which in turn took shape in rotation, threw off smaller bodies or drew them from other rotating masses of substance. Gradually many condensed to more solid form, but even yet the largest stars are of a density much less than that of the atmosphere of the earth.

The universe is gradually "running down". By Einstein's theory matter and energy are one. The sun and stars through space throw off large bodies are then, throwing off into space immense quantities of energy and of necessity gradually decreasing in volume. But as the average life of a star is computed at 200 million years, and as the sun so far is estimated to be only some seven million years old, there seems no immediate fear of the solar system at least coming to a halt through lack of energy. It is estimated that in 1,500,000 years the sun will be so reduced in volume that its distance from the earth will have increased by one-tenth, and its attraction upon the earth correspondingly reduced. Our year will then be 400 days long and our temperature much lower.

During 1926, the Canada Colonization Association settled 734 families on 168,094 acres in Western Canada, 59,675 acres of which were in the province of Manitoba.

Dr. Blum Speaks On Polarization And Deposition

Dr. William Blum, well known on electric deposition, will this afternoon give a lecture on the subject of "Polarization in Electric Deposition." In his speech, which will be illustrated, Dr. Blum will explain, it is understood, the principles of polarization and throwing power.

The lecture is being given under the combined auspices of the Chemical and Physical Societies. It is scheduled to start at five sharp in the large lecture room of the Chemistry Building.

SEAT SALE FOR "TOM JONES" ON THURSDAY

First Day Set Aside For Exchange Tickets

MACKENZIE MANAGER

Indications Now Point to Choral Society's Production Being Well Attended

The seat sale for "Tom Jones", the comic opera being produced by the Choral Society, goes on sale at C. W. Lindsay's, St. Catherine St. West, on Thursday Feb. 3. It was announced yesterday by Maxwell Mackenzie, the ticket manager for the production. The first day will be set aside for people who have exchange tickets, after that it will be first come first served. This, of course means that the purchasers of exchange tickets will have the advantage of being given first choice. No tickets will be exchanged at the Union.

From February 4 to February 9 inclusive theatre seats may be obtained at Lindsay's for either exchange tickets or for cash. On and after Feb. 10 theatre seats will be on sale at the Box Office of His Majesty's only.

Max Mackenzie, ticket manager, expressed himself as more than pleased with the way the ticket sale was going. The music loving public of Montreal is keenly interested in the venture of the Choral Society and already the $1.10 and $0.85 tickets for students and the $1.65 and $1.10 tickets for outsiders are getting scarce. With the production still three and a half weeks in the future Mackenzie thinks that this points to a possible shortage of tickets, and desires to impress on everyone the advisability of getting in touch with their class representative at once.

Box seats are being handled at the Union and any one desiring them may leave his order at the Union addressed Maxwell Mackenzie. These seats will be set aside and may be obtained by calling at C. W. Lindsay's on February 3, 4, and 5. Tickets will not be held after the 5th. If remittances are enclosed with the order and it is requested, Mackenzie said, tickets will be mailed to the purchaser. The price of box seats are $75 each including tax.

SENSORY DEFECTS, SUBJECT

Ralph Merry Chief Speaker at Psychological Club

Sensory defects and mental abnormality will be the subject for discussion at the next meeting of the Psychological Society, to be held on Monday evening, Jan. 31st. Ralph Merry, B.A., member of the graduate school in Psychology will introduce the subject. The meeting will be an open one.

Merry is well known in undergraduate circles as one who has not allowed the drawback of almost total blindness to interfere with his college course. Just now he is doing special research work in the field of sensory defects, particularly those relating to blindness and deafness. His address will be of a popular nature further details of which will be announced later.

"TRELAWNEY OF THE WELLS" TO BE PRODUCED

English Department Will Stage Comedy Next Month

CASTING TOMORROW

Any Students Are Eligible to Try For Parts in Play

The first play to be produced in the new Moyses Theatre under the direction of the English Department will be Phero's comedy, "Trelawney of the Wells" which will be staged towards the end of next month. The play will be produced on an elaborate scale with complete costumes and full scene effects. The tryouts for the different parts will be held in the Theatre tomorrow morning and afternoon.

"Trelawney of the Wells" was written by Phero shortly after the middle of the 19th. century, as a tribute to Robertson in his breaking away from traditional forms. It is a clever comedy, but at times works up to great climaxes of tenderness and thus sustains the interest and attention of the audience throughout. It is also a play which calls for considerable ability on the part of some of the actors, as it includes the portrayal of a theatre on the stage. Thus, those who act in this "theatre within a theatre" have to act the part of actors as well as normal character portrayal on the stage.

The casting will take place in the Moyses Theatre tomorrow in the morning from 9 to 11 and in the afternoon from 1:30 to 5. These hours have been arranged so that anyone wishing to try for a part can do so at any hour they are free during the day. While the production is under the direction of the English Department, and more particularly in connection with the class of English 18, it is pointed out that this in no way restricts the cast to members of that class or to students of English. Anyone who is interested will be welcomed at the tryouts tomorrow, according to the producers, who are anxious to have a large turnout, of students to compete for parts. The cast is a large one, comprising in all about 20 characters of various kinds, including a good many excellent

MED DANCE ONLY TWO WEEKS AWAY

Dobrofsky Orchestra to Play At Annual Event

The Medical Dance needs no introduction. Always it is one of the main socials of the college year. And this year it is as complete and elaborate as ever. The annual formal Medical event takes place at the spacious New Medical building, on Friday, February the Fourth.

The chief item of interest is the Dobrofsky Orchestra that will play the dance music; and this is under the personal direction of Lou Goodman, formerly of J. C. Smith's Orchestra of the Mount Royal Hotel. With the most essential factor of success assured, the committee goes on to consider the other details.

The decorations will be the elaborate undertakings of years; and the Medical Building appears to lend itself extremely well to this. But this time the committee will attempt the impossible in making the effect even better; and the color scheme will be different from that seen formerly at any medical dance.

Only three hundred couple tickets have been placed on sale; and though they have been out only three or four days, the returns are very favorable and already warrant the success of the event. The price of the formal Supper-Dance tickets is five dollars per couple. For the catering it is enough to mention that Pierre, of McGill Union fame, will give it his special attention.

The Medical Dance Committee wish to inform all those medical students of the lower years that may have both the time and the inclination to aid the committee in any of the dance details, to communicate them as soon as possible. The personnel, all of whom have been working hard, is as follows: Louis McLean, chairman; Eddie Casey, Sec. Treas.; Jerry McRoberts, Decorations; Jack Flynn, Catering; and Jerry Altman, Furnishings and Music.

Sunday Evening Musical Was A Great Success

The first Fireside Musical of the New year was held in the Resident's Room of Strathcona hall on Sunday evening. The meeting was opened with several hymns which were enthusiastically sung by those present.

Miss Hibberd, accompanied by Mr. Cooke, next rendered two vocal offerings, "The Voice in the Wilderness" and "The Bars of Spring." Miss Matham then presented an impromptu pianoforte selection which was followed by two tenor solos, "Nobody knows the Trouble I've Seen" and "What is there Hidden in the Heart of a Rose" tendered by Mr. Cooke. Mr. Jacobsen occupied the chair.

INDIA DISAPPOINTED BY ENGLAND'S FAITH

Britain Holding on Because of Commercial Interests

DAS AND BUNCE

League Of Nations Club Dealt With Vital Question Last Night

"India" was the subject of the League of Nations Club last night when Bunce read a paper on "The Beginning of Indian Nationalism" and Das on "Indian Nationalism Today." The evening discussion was largely centred around the question whether India should obtain her freedom by military, or by passive measures. The club as a whole felt that Gandhi's method would be far more favorable to the outlook of the world as a whole rather than the attitude of Das (not the speaker).

Bunce outlined the history of Nationalism beginning from the fall of the Mogul Empire, following through to the Mutiny and then to the modern day attitude. He gave the opinion that there had been bound up too much of Capitalism and Imperialism. Das, in his ardent plea for freedom at any cost, stated that the Indians were disappointed by the broken faith of the Home Governments. The English were holding on because of their commercial interests, and although they had improved by Western methods, the country as a whole, the people were far worse off than in the pre-Mogul time when the communal life gave peace and happiness.

A lengthy discussion followed in which neither religion, constitutional government, or social aspirations were spared. While Das firmly held his view of force, the meeting as a whole believed that the hope of peace of the world lay in the future of China and India. If these countries did not adopt the commercial outlook as the ultimate end of all nationality and the idea of Imperialism, then they would be a force in the world to bring peaceful reform and mutual inter-nationalism, which is the aim of the League of Nations.

GROUP TO DISCUSS EDUCATION

Harry Avison to Lead Group on Tuesday

Beginning on Tuesday at 5 there will be a group meet in Strathcona Hall under the leadership of Harry Avison to study each week some application of Christian principles to the world as it presents itself today.

The S.C.M. Conference at St. Anne's dealt with the subject of Education, Religion and Government. This group is an outcome of the thought stimulated and will meet more especially with Education; for it is thought that no actual reform can be made until the basis of education is somewhat changed.

The group will take as its basis three books and from them formulate an opinion. The books are Butler, Life and Habit; Bertrand Russell; Education and the Good Life; Meiklejohn, The Liberal College. The group is open to all whether they have attended the S.C.M. Conference or not, and preferably those who are in no other group.

FRESHMEN WILL TRY FOR BOVEY SHIELD TONIGHT

Professors Adair, Carruthers And Stanley Judges

FIVE MINUTES

To Take Affirmative or Negative of Either of Two Assigned Subjects

The freshman speaking contest for the Bovey Shield is to be held tonight in the Grill Room of the Union at 8:30. Lists close at four this afternoon. The shield, presented by Colonel Bovey, becomes the property of the winner.

Professors E. R. Adair, C. Carruthers, and H. C. Stanley, will act as judges. The subjects chosen are, 1. That the lecture system is being over-emphasized in Canadian universities, and 2. That the leading universities of Canada should be granted the right to elect a representative to the Parliament of Canada.

Each contestant must be prepared to make a five-minute speech on either side of either of these subjects and must be prepared to refute arguments brought up on the opposing side. The chairman will introduce the subject while he is speaking. The first candidate will be allowed to listen to him. The contestant will then be expected to refute the chairman's arguments and speak constructively on the negative of the proposition. While he is speaking the second candidate will be brought in and will refute the first man's arguments. Thus each man will be able to show his power of rebuttal and his ability to present a constructive argument.

The meeting is open to all.

Following are the regulations in connection with the Bovey Shield:

1. The shield is for competition in Public Speaking.
2. Those eligible to compete are men in their first University year only. Men who have entered the university from classical colleges and are in their first year are eligible, unless holding a B.A. degree.
3. The executive of the Literary and Debating Society shall decide each year between three forms or speaking.

WOMEN WILL HAVE SKATING PRIVILEGES

Fancy Skating Class Recently Organized

The attention of all women students is drawn to the announcements from the department of Physical Education concerning plain and fancy skating and ice hockey.

Women undergraduates in all faculties have the privilege of skating on the rink on McTavish Street whenever it is open, without a fee. Registration tickets are essential and may be produced on demand. Skating is also allowed on the rink in the Hollow from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., providing the rink is not being used for hockey (students are requested to refer to the hockey time-table and notices on the R. V. C. athletic board). Registration tickets are needed on the rink in the Hollow, too.

All hockey practices and matches will be held on the Hollow rink whether concerned with the R. V. C. or the M. S. P. E. Owing to the fact that the inter-year matches and games played by the Montreal Women's Amateur Hockey League will begin in the near future it is well for all hockey players to keep informed by noticing the hockey time-table posted on the athletic board.

A fancy skating class has recently been organized for women students wishing to learn the art. A small fee will be charged for tuition classes are to be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 5 on Wednesday evening at 8:20 and on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

grow old, a woman dyes while she is still young, bangles her arms, bingles her hair, and bangles her face." The women were defended by one speaker who pointed to the highly civilized way in which they rode bicycles and ate chocolates. Admitting that they powdered their faces he gave the advice of Cromwell, "Trust in the Lord and keep your powder dry."

Plumbers' Ball Tickets Have All Been Taken Up

The Plumber's Ball will be held under the distinguished patronage of Lady Currie, Mrs. H. M. MacKay, Mrs. J. B. Porter, Mrs. E. Brown and Mrs. C. V. Christie, it was announced last night by W. A. James, President of the Science Undergraduate Society.

All tickets have been sold, and many students, it is learned, have been disappointed. A meeting is called for Tuesday at five in Room 33 of the Engineering Building, for all those who have purchased tickets. It is important, the committee declare, that everybody be present as many important matters will be discussed. Class lists will be passed around this week and everyone should see that his name and his partner's are placed on this list, so that it will be complete for the press.

All details in connection with the dance have been completed, even to the purchasing of favors which are quite novel. The decorative scheme is entirely different to any which has been before attempted and will be in keeping with Science's great social event of the year.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF ARTS FACULTY

To be Held at Windsor Hotel On Feb. 2.

Final arrangements have been completed for the Annual Dinner of the Faculty of Arts, which will be held in the Windsor Hotel on Wednesday, February 2. An able committee representing each year in the Faculty has been at work for some time on details, and as a result the function is expected to prove even more interesting than last year's Arts Dinner. Besides the student speeches there will be addresses by Sir Arthur Currie, Dr. J. P. Day, Professor W. T. Waugh and Mr. Henri Bourassa.

An excellent toast list forms the body of the programme, but other features will be introduced. The orchestra in attendance will be in charge of Fred Gross. Free cigarettes will be provided. A souvenir programme, with a special cover design by Victor Rose, and with ample space for autographs, is being prepared. Representatives are expected to be present from Queen's, Toronto Western and University of Montreal. A special table is to be reserved for graduates.

The toast list is as follows:—

The KING by the Chairman, Jack Duckworth.

OUR ALMA MATER proposed by B. Alexander, response by Sir Arthur Currie.

THE FACULTY OF ARTS proposed by DeW. Mackay, response by Dr. J. P. Day.

ADDRESS by Mr. Henri Bourassa.

THE PROFESSORS proposed by Henri LaFleur, response by Professor W. T. Waugh.

OUR SISTER UNIVERSITIES proposed by R. G. M. Gammell, response by representatives present.

Tickets for this banquet may be secured from any member of the committee: Brock Jameson B. Alexander, DeW. Mackay, C. W. Leslie, H. LaFleur, John Arnold, Ross Patterson, Jack Duckworth.

POOR OUTLOOK IN INDUSTRIAL ENGLAND NOW

New Currents In British Political Life

MRS. AGNES HAMILTON

Member of English Labor Party Speaks at People's Forum

"The industrial outlook in England has been extremely poor since the cessation of the post-war boom in 1921," declared Mrs. Agnes Hamilton in a brilliant lecture at the People's Forum last night. Mrs. Hamilton, who is a strong member of the Labor Party, spoke on "New Currents in British Political Life", and her talk consisted of a critical review of present political conditions in England. Professor Waugh was in the chair.

That the present industrial situation in England is deplorable can be readily seen by anyone who has read the papers during the last six months. Thousands of families are living in the most abject poverty, as a result of the recent general strike. In many towns the women have to leave their children at home, while they go out to find work, and there is an increasing demoralization at the low physical conditions due to unemployment. Those men who have work are in a far worse situation than they were before the strike, and this is due in the main, to the rank mismanagement of the government.

Stanley Baldwin, the man at the head of the government, is intelligent, honest, and kind-hearted, but these qualities are not sufficient for a Prime Minister.

"Where Mr. Baldwin fails hopelessly," said the speaker, "it is that he fails to comprehend many practical problems. He was incapable of working out a solution for the present situation, because he simply failed to see what the problem was. He merely stood by and watched the fight, while the miners starved."

This fact has not, of course, been of any help to the Conservative party, while the Liberals are in a far worse position, due to the unpopularity of Mr. Lloyd George. No less than seven

PRINCIPAL HOST TO HISTORICAL CLUB

Relations of Crown and Prime Minister

The members of the Historical Club will tomorrow evening be the guests of the Principal, Sir Arthur Currie at the Faculty Club on University Street. The subject under discussion will be the Relations of Crown and Prime Minister and the papers of the evening are to be delivered by Saul Hayes of fourth year Arts, and Carl Goldenberg, Arts, '25. As the subject is one of great present day interest the executive hope that all members will endeavor to be present. Sir Arthur, an old friend of the Historical Club, had hoped to entertain the members in his own home, but was unable to do so this year owing to the fact that furnishing of his residence has not been completed.

INNERFACULTY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Five Teams Already in New Series

An interfaculty indoor baseball series is to be played this season, instead of the usual interclass contests, manager Norton announced last night. This change has been made necessary because of the limited time available at the Montreal High gym. Arts, Commerce, Dentistry, Medicine and Science, have already signified their intention of entering the interfaculty league and practice hours have been arranged and a schedule has been drawn up which may be subject to some alterations.

The choice of men for the McGill Reds and McGill Whites is to depend entirely upon the performance of the men in the interfaculty league. The Reds and Whites will represent the college in exhibition games with some of the strongest teams in the city league.

Macdonald College intends to compete for the indoor ball championship and the interfaculty football championship.

Freshman Impromptu Debating.

WHAT should prove of paramount interest to any sensible freshman at McGill University is the impromptu speaking contest that takes place in the ballroom of the Union this evening. Apart from the shield that has been presented by Colonel Bovey for the best freshman talker on the floor, much is to be gained by first year undergraduates in taking part in this debating contest.

If a man can first of all talk well on any given occasion, and secondly, if he can write well, when he gets out into the wide world, then he need not fear as far as success is concerned; and the most important element in writing and speaking well is practice. Debates at college have always been recognized as being a wonderful medium in the development of a youth's oratorical powers, and this fact alone should bring out a good number of the freshman class this evening.

A five minute address on a subject that is selected but one day in advance is what is required for any contestant in this speaking competition; and, if there is a first year university man that cannot get up and talk for a mere five minutes on a subject that he has prepared in advance, then it is high time that this same first year man avail himself of the opportunity to develop a very important quality that is apparently lacking in him.

An excellent rule that is to guide the judges in their decision is that which says: "Good pronunciation and the use of good grammar are to be given first consideration—and no candidate shall be awarded the shield unless he be considered thoroughly satisfactory in this regard." It is a matter much to be deplored to hear upper-classmen at times, and even university graduates, desecrating the King's English wholesale in their conversation and correspondence.

Student Cyclops

A GREAT deal of the value of an university education lies in the daily contact of student with student, not only in the academic atmosphere of the classroom but also at functions that stress the lighter side of life. The development of a worth while character is perhaps the main aim of one who is under-going a college career, and means which contributes to developing a good character is an ever observant attitude when in the presence of one's fellow students.

We can learn much from the peculiarities, eccentricities, and foibles of our brother undergraduate, if only we would proceed about our university world in a wide-awake, critical manner, rather than in the usual way of accepting things because they are, and letting it go at that. When one notes a particularly undesirable quality in another student, he is either struck with the fact that he himself has that same deficiency, or that he himself has not that same deficiency, and, is not going to have it as a result of his observation.

But the average individual wanders around with very little else in mind but himself—and even then is blind to his own weaknesses. He delights in commenting caustically on his fellow student, but never seems to profit by another's foibles. This type, unfortunately prevalent on most campuses, resembles much the Cyclops of ancient myth; the gentlemen that had only one eye in the centre of their forehead.

If you have't seen the student who prates on and on, seeing everything through the narrow range of vision of the Cyclops; if you cannot recall any such one, then, watch out, you yourself are probably just one of that type.

Between The Book Ends

Religious Fact and Fancy.

THIS BELIEVING WORLD, by Lewis Browne.

It sometimes happens that the layman gives a thought to religion on a day of the week other than Sunday. When he does, though he generally assumes that his own form of worship is better than any other, he often finds himself wondering vaguely how it is that the majority of people are not of his faith; how is it that they are willing to die for a god for which he hasn't the slightest respect; how, in fact, is it that so many millions have been deceived by false gods and false prophets?

beginning of time; or, perhaps, (this a little fearfully) are all these gods really false—?

To such doubts and questions as these, Lewis Browne in "This Believing World" gives an illuminating and arresting answer. Eminent fitted for the task by wide travel and contact with members of all churches, he presents a dispassionate survey of the birth and growth of every great religion known to mankind. Its comparisons and contrasts Buddhism with Confucianism, Zoroastrianism with Judaism and Christianity with them all.

Each faith is revealed as a snow-white element at its conception and an almost unrecognizable alloy after a few centuries of existence. Christianity he discusses in two chapters: one on Jesus and the other on Christ. His treatment here might well have been calculated to enrage the fundamentalists, but only as truth enrages the wilfully blind. Lewis Browne throws into relief what the serious student already understands. He merely shows that the Christ of popular belief is more the fiction of Paul than the reality of Nazareth.

Indeed, "This Believing World" is a book that should be read by everyone even if only for the unconscious lesson in tolerance and truth that wells up from its pages.

Idler's Diary

Sunday the 16th

Mrs. Fawn gave a tea party in the afternoon to which I was bidden. It was great fun. Miss Buttercup and Miss Smiling were there and a lot of people I did not know. Mrs. Fawn's two little daughters, Bobby and Joan, handed around the tea-cups and things so that we men had a slack time of it. They are very attractive children and I would do anything to please them.

When the people had gone Mrs. Fawn most kindly asked me to stay to supper, which I was very glad to do and afterwards Bobby and Joan came down in their dressing gowns to say good-night. They looked too sweet for words, and the fact is (truth will out, you know) I stole a kiss from Joan, much to the amusement of Bobby, who fled precipitously.

Tuesday the 18th

The day of the wretched exam. I arose very early, since the exam was at a time and hurried practically breakfast to college. However, the exam did not prove to be so terrible and I have a little ray of hope. Professors are quite nice sometimes.

Wednesday the 19th

Went for a walk in the afternoon up the mountain and there saw a squirrel struggling to devour an enormous slice of bread that it had found. Startled by my approach it dragged its prize with difficulty to the foot of a neighbouring tree, and then with one eye upon me and the slice between its fore-paws, it continued eating at a great rate appearing visibly to swell as it did so. I then tapped my stick suddenly upon the ground whereat the squirrel being much afraid stuffed the bread into its mouth and was up the tree in a trice and looking down at me with indignation written all over its face which so amused me that I burst out laughing to the amazement of a passer-by.

Friday the 21st

Miss Buttercup in the Arts-Building lade me a very doleful good morning which inspired me to write an ode to her. It started off rather well, I think:—

"Miss Buttercup, why are you blue,
When yellow is your natural hue?"
Metaphorically speaking, of course I did not mean yellow like a Chinese person but yellow like a buttercup. However, my music at this point deserted me, and I was obliged to leave the ode unfinished.

Saturday the 22nd

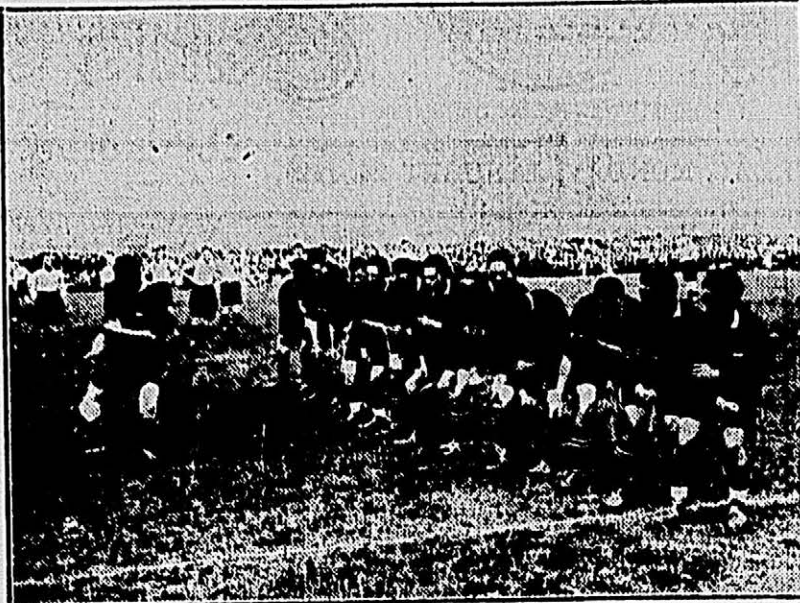

After being to a party on Friday night I arose feeling very tired indeed and crept like a small unwillingly to college (Shakespeare). But Philosophy I fear, afforded me little pleasure and most of the lecture passed over my heedless head. Went early to bed.

RED LIGHTS OR HUMANS?

Popular fable has it that chaperons of fraternity and sorority house dances are present merely to lend atmosphere and tone to decorous activity, but in this day when even freshmen do not believe in fables it is the generally nourished attitude that chaperons are but members of a third sex who must be regarded as nuisances and are expected to return the compliment with reciprocal regard of house dances as nuisances. It has been often inferred, in action as well as talk, that chaperons must be tolerated because they are not required—and the toleration often does not extend itself even so far as to be called polite. It has been a much-evidenced attitude that a chaperon is a person not entitled to notice—very even to respect—of the dancers; a chaperon is traditionally a wet blanket one steers as far away from as a hot poker. A distinction is made between guests and chaperons to the extent that chaperons are branded as if with a red light "Danger" and if they in some untoward manner actually have a good time it is not through the efforts of the organization throwing the dance.

Houses, to supply the barest hospitality at least, have had to resort to the delegation of members to entertain (a doubtful term) the chaperons for certain periods of an evening with a punishment if they do not keep their "dates." The delegates usually fail to show up and even if they are faced they think it worth while. In justification the usual alibi is that no one can keep track of the dances when one is wandering about the grounds or sitting in a car—and after all who cares if they don't keep track? This chaperon's feelings are a minor consideration when your own are uppermost. There is no doubt about your own being uppermost.

This attitude is exceedingly lamentable and cannot be too highly disparaged in principle and in practice. Chaperons usually are as popular as a motor cop on the state highway and the highest fun is gotten by those who can outwit the "proctors" the most and the oftenest. A chaperon is a thoroughly human individual, is perfectly capable and often extremely willing to have a good time, and is a person who should not be just tolerated but be honored, respected, and not looked upon as legitimate prey for sneers, cold-shoulders, and jest.

There can be two solutions to the problem of chaperoning so that the University administration, the houses, and the chaperons will be satisfied. It has been suggested by one of the members of the faculty that a more or less formal reception be employed to initiate each house dance, marking a definite and official beginning of the function with a hand-shaking ordeal that will bore most people who would like rather to come in at will and leave at will but will insure dances starting on time and chaperons getting at least a superficial idea that they are being noticed. Such a means would give all the people a chance to meet each other and give no opportunity to a man to ignore the chaperons because he does not know them and fancies that maybe he doesn't want to. Chaperons should be invited for their general sociability and there should be held out to them the assurance of a good time. Because one must do some policing that is legitimate and essential should not bar one from consideration and treatment as one of the crowd at least if not as an honored guest.

The other alternative is to do away with chaperons entirely and to put in their place official representatives of the University normally known and designated in public dance halls as "bouncers," or some other equally derogatory but expressive term. These would have the wholesome duty of maintaining decorous conditions and will accomplish their tasks with the dispatch and impartiality of any professional trained man. They will have no scruples about seeing that a 300 watt bulb is in the place where a 30 watt bulb has been screwed, and they will be altogether unbiassed servants of a cause set upon and only interested in their job. They will have no fun, except the sense of duty well done and might logically be expected to be un-intelligent dunderheads who would hardly resent even being made the butt of jest and general unpopularity. The University would be better satisfied, for it would have no worries as to whether the proctors thoroughly understood what they are supposed to do, the organized houses would find eliminated the begrudged debt they fancy they owe to the chaperons, and ex-chaperons would be relieved of tasks that have never been valuable anyhow. Houses would have no more responsibility toward the "bouncer" than to see that he is not locked out of the house, that he be given free rein and possible protection in case there be any move to spirit him away by strong-arm methods, and that his orders be obeyed as he gives them. He would be as popular as an umpire at a sandlot game and there would be no masking of feelings. If he were hated he would reciprocate with mutual regards.

Whatever the action, it is assured that present conditions should not be allowed to flourish. The expression of Liberal candidates lost their deposit in recent bi-elections. The Labor Party, on the other hand, has had its position strengthened by the strike. Its stand throughout the whole affair has had an educational effect on the rank and file, which will not be without results.

The members of the Labor Party are there from conviction and not from circumstances as is shown by the fact that Oliver Baldwin, the son of the Prime Minister, is a Laborite. comedy parts will afford ample scope for the powers of the many comedians at McGill.

In addition to actors and actresses, the producers need men to take care of the back-stage work, and any who wish to gain some experience in this direction and an insight into the workings of a modern stage, will be welcomed in the Moyse Theatre tomorrow during the same hours in which the casting takes place. The Moyse Theatre affords as complete an example of modern scientific stage equipment as can be found in this city, being provided with all conveniences for scene shifting, and the best lighting system possessed by any theatre in Montreal.

The dates for the production have not yet been decided upon, but it will be held some time around the end of February so as to be about midway between the production of "Tom Jones" and the "Red and White Revue."

one faculty member's wife who chaperoned a house dance that, "They know me when I come over for Sunday dinner, but not a one has spoken to me tonight," sums up in general student attitude. The expression of the University in its round-robin to faculty members and house presidents that attempts to iron out difficulties by listing definite rules for the guidance of students and faculty members sums up their attitude. The expression of the chaperons as given out by the faculty members who are potential chaperons indicates they are highly resentful of their treatment. Things are in a bad way—though many people may delude themselves into believing otherwise by a superficial survey. It is high time that an understanding be reached whether chaperons are red lights or humans, and that they be treated and can expect to be treated according to conclusions so drawn.

A youthful red and white quintette, possessing plenty of fight and brimming over with pep, outpointed the strong University of Toronto team by a score of 27 to 23 in the first senior intercollegiate basketball game of the local season. Saturday night at the Montreal High School gymnasium, it was a closely contested match from start to finish with the outcome always in doubt.

Varsity, playing their second game in as many nights and suffering from several injuries, pressed continually and although they never led, the blue and white were always dangerous. Towards the middle of the second session the redmen gradually began to draw away from their opponents and with but three minutes remaining were leading 26 to 17. But Toronto were not beaten. Three baskets in quick succession, one by Hutchinson, the veteran centre of the blue team and two by the well-known "Chuck Potter", again put the U. of T. within striking distance. The determined rally of the blue-clad players however stopped then and there, and just before the game ended Bob Hayden added one point on a free throw to put McGill four points up.

The victory only came after a stiff fight and brilliant playing by the McGill squad. The team was forced to continue at a fast pace throughout the entire contest but not once did they falter. Toronto surprised by the driving McGill attack proved to be strong finishers and played their best game at the end of each period. The pretty combination work and the splendid individual efforts of the McGill forwards together with the hard checking defensive game of the red and white guards all went to assure a red and white victory.

McGill, who were leading 14 to 13 at half time, successfully shook the jinx that has been following them for the last two or three games and actually played better in the final period than in the initial session. They missed many chances under the basket however and it was here that they were noticeably weak.

R.V.C. '27 TO PLAY JUNIORS TOMORROW

Hollow Rink Scene of First Inter Year Hockey Match

The first of a series of R.V.C. inter-year hockey matches will be played off tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the rink in the Hollow. This game will be contested by R.V.C. '27 and R.V.C. '28. The Seniors will wear red sweaters and the Juniors white on this occasion.

Both years will have a final practice before the game this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Hollow. Notices concerning these practices are elsewhere in the "Daily." The Juniors' team will be chosen at the practice and it is essential that all requested will be on hand.

Although mid-term examinations and weather conditions have been somewhat of a handicap to hockey practices, nevertheless all players should recognize the need for frequent practicing. The hockey managers report that attendance at both class and general practices has been most disappointing, and in view of the approaching inter-year matches together with the city league games, better attendance in the future is required.

Moreover, the date of the match between Queen's University and a combined team of M.S.P.E. and R.V.C. students is not so far off. In order that the R.V.C. half of the team may be soon picked out it is necessary that all players avail themselves of every opportunity to display their ability by turning out to practices.

Players picked out for class teams are reminded that medical examinations and two practices are essential before they may compete in the inter-year matches.

EVENTS NAMED FOR INTERFACULTY MEET

Novices Have Excellent Opportunity to Star

COMPLETE PROGRAM

Grads to Bring Large Aggregate of Champs for Polo Exhibition Events

(By the Natatory Nymph)

Manager Petzold of the Swimming team reported last night that the final arrangements for the Interfaculty Swimming Meet to be held on Thursday were completed and that the entries would be published at a later date. There is keen competition shown all around and the entries are representative of all the faculties, there being included Arts, Science, Medicine and Commerce. The Grads have made searching inquiries as to the eligibility of their men and it was decided that McGill would take on any team which they produced no matter if there included those who were now of a senior standing.

The meet, although termed Interfaculty, is in reality limited to those who have never represented McGill. This does not include those who are on the Intercollegiate Polo team and who as yet have not been ranked in the senior swimming team. So the meet can truly be called a Novice Meet. In fact it was so called until a trophy was given for Interfaculty competition.

There are in all fourteen events for Thursday evening, nine of which are competition among the novices and the remaining five are exhibitions and matches between the McGill first team and the Grads. The Grads feel certain that they are going to defeat McGill in the medley race and the illustrious manager of the Grads, C. C. Pyle (Grads Edition) has promised that the show will be worth coming to if it is only for the huge spectacle which he is going to stage.

The following is the list of events to be competed for in the order named:

- Relay race, 4 men, 50 yards each.
- Fancy Diving.
- 50 yds. Free Style, Heats.
- Fancy Diving Exhibition by Mort Gibbons and Vic Clarholm.
- 100 yds. Breast stroke.
- 100 yds. Free style Exhibition.
- 50 yds. Free Style Final.
- 50 yds. Back stroke.
- 100 yds. Free style.
- Specialty race.
- Long plunge.
- Medley race relay, McGill vs. Grads.
- 200 yds. Free style.
- Water polo, McGill vs. Grads.

The last event named is likely to be the star event of the evening for both of the teams are champions of Canada in their own respective class. It will in the end prove to be a battle of weight and wits, and any who have seen the Grads at play in the water know that they have the weight. The Grads team which has played all the fall season is to be augmented by three men who are well known in Dominion polo circles, namely Dr. Curly Walters, Jim Ross and Harold Fisk. Each of these men was on the team which won the Senior Dominion Championship in 1920, indeed there will be only one man lacking from that 1920 sextet. Both Jim Ross and Harold Fisk are members of the relay team which holds the Dominion 200 yds. Relay Championship and so McGill has all her work cut out to defeat these prodigies. But if in the fall McGill was able to hold the Grads to a one to nil score there is no fear that since there has been an addition

ROTTEN EGGS AND DISPUTED GOALS IN U. OF M TRIUMPH

Bizarre Spectacle As Queen's Lost Overtime Battle, 5-3

HUGHES PROTESTED

Queen's Goalie Threatened to Leave Ice — Close Struggle

University of Montreal opened their intercollegiate hockey season Saturday night at the Mount Royal Arena with a dashing 5 to 3 overtime victory over the hapless Queen's sextette, in a struggle crammed full of excitement, action and smart hockey. In fact, certain of the one thousand fans became so carried away with their feelings during arguments over disputed goals that they sought to give vent to their dissatisfaction by hurling the well-known aged non-fruit at one of the goal umpires.

It was a hard-earned triumph for the U. of M. and a discouraging defeat for the Kingston players, but Queen's fighting spirit was well equal to the task of entirely counteracting the superior playing ability of the French-Canadian collegians.

Queen's aggressiveness swept the U. of M. off their feet in the opening session, and two goals were rammed home through a disorganized defence. Three goals by U. of M. when they struck their true stride in the second period, gave them the lead only to lose it again in the final twenty minutes, when Howard Reid, Queen's left winger, made the Kingston players rally take concrete form.

Then came the overtime with its two dazzling goals by Page, stocky French centre, and University of Montreal too the hockey game, simultaneously establishing themselves as formidable contenders for the intercollegiate title in a race that is more open this year than it has been for some time. Queen's, despite their fighting display, were relegated to the bottom rung. Varsity, champions of long standing, but heralded this winter as a weak aggregation, are again in front, with a victory over Queen's and McGill; McGill and University of Montreal, each boasting a win over Queen's are on the leaders' heels, although McGill's stock has slumped following their 4 to 1 defeat at the hands of the "T" in Toronto Friday.

The Kingston players started auspiciously. They outshot the French-Canadian students and found their way to close quarters more frequently during the first twenty minutes. Lindsay, captain and centre, tallied first, after splitting the outer guard and beating Beaumont. Just before (Continued on page four)

McGILL JUNIORS IN WIN OVER LOYOLA

Scored 4-2 Victory in Opening Game of Season

McGill Juniors defeated Loyola 4-2 in a fast game Saturday at the Loyola rink. The ice was in good condition, considering the weather.

The Juniors started off well and after about ten minutes of play Robertson put McGill in the lead. This brought new life to Loyola and just before the end of the period Kennedy beat Budge on a close shot. In the second period McGill fell off and the forwards did not work together. Lantier got through and scored on a close one but Calder soon evened up matters. Loyola had a lucky break when the puck bounced in off Budge's stick.

In the last period Robertson completely fooled the Loyola goalie on a long shot and a few minutes later on another close one.

Tynan, Burke, and Kennedy turned in a good game for Loyola, while McKeown, Budge and Robertson starred for McGill.

INTERMEDIATES LOST TO LOYOLA

Took Bad 10-3 Defeat — Six Goals in Opener

McGill intermediate hockey team came home on the short end of a 10 to 3 score after their game with Loyola at the latter's rink on Saturday. The provincial champions played a very strong game and will be the team to beat for the title. McGill's defense split wide open in the first period to let in six goals. From then on the red and white squad battled on even terms but the handicap proved too great for them to overcome. It was the old story of a smooth working machine against a collection of individual's and the lopsided score was the result.

Outstanding among the winners were the veterans Captain Babe Fregau and Hawkins who scored most of the goals and gave a great display of accurate shooting. For McGill Tommy Arnold played his usual heady game at centre and scored two of his team's three tallies. Halfpenny getting the other.

The McGill defense was weak and Robbins gave a poor display in goal retiring in favor of Carley after the disastrous first period.

WESTMOUNT "Y" LOST TO MCGILL SECONDS

Red and White Intermediate Basketeers Won, 28-26

NOW LEAD LEAGUE

Teams Tied at Half Time — Last Minute Basket by Covshoff Meant Victory

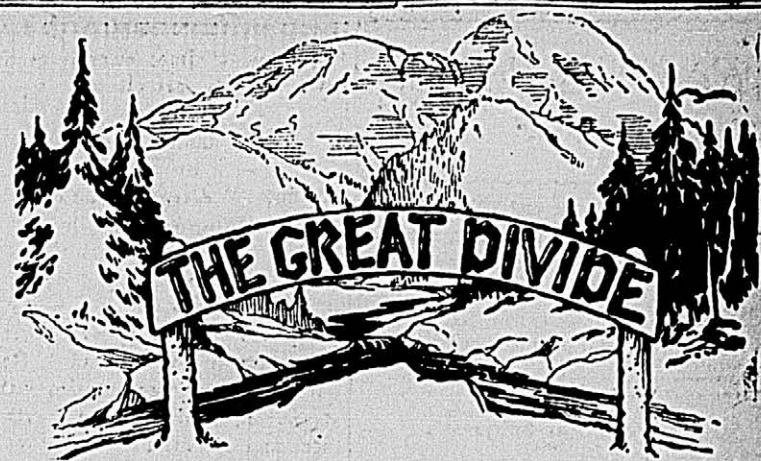

The McGill Intermediate basketball team scored their second victory in as many starts Saturday night when they took the measure of the league leading Westmount "Y. M. C. A." quintette at the High School gymnasium by the score of 28 to 26. The game served as preliminary to the senior intercollegiate fixture and except for the last few minutes was fast and well-played. The win puts the McGill seconds at the head of section "A" of the city league.

The redmen were tied with the "Y" team at half time 13 to 13. Play was close in the second period and with five minutes to go the score was again deadlocked at 24 to 24. Captain Stattner then put McGill to the fore with a beautiful basket but Westmount retaliated a moment later by netting one again to tie the count. The pace was beginning to tell on the players of both teams and as result the contest began to become somewhat ragged and the over anxiety of both teams to tally meant the loss of many good chances. Finally however, with 46 seconds remaining, Covshoff substitute McGill defence man, rushed up the floor and scored a field goal putting the red and white two points to the good. The desperate last minute efforts of the west enders to count and thus force the game into over time came to naught and McGill emerged victorious.

The red team displayed more combination than their opponents and it was here that their main advantage lay. The passing and dribbling of both teams was of a high standard especially for squads of the intermediate class and taking it all in all it was a good contest. A number of supporters of the western team who were on hand vied with McGill delegation in seeing who could make the most noise, the closeness of the contest and frequent shifting of the lead being conducive to much rooting.

Captain Stattner was the high scorer of the game having four field goals and a free throw to his credit. He played an all around good game as did Munroe, Silverman and Wykes who alternated with the latter at center. Calhoun, Hicks and Covshoff were good defensively, the latter scoring the winning basket.

McGill netted 11 field goals, the same number as the "Y" team were able to count. The red and white had the edge in free shooting, however, for they tallied 6 out of their 16 attempts against Westmount's 4 successful shots out of 12 tries. N. G. S. Ingram of West Hill High School who refereed the game was inclined to use his whistle and handle the ball too often but his work was nevertheless quite satisfactory from every point of view. ROTTEN EGGS AND DISPUTED GOALS from the spectators and players' point of view left little to be desired. Every McGill player gave his best. Bob Hayden, who led the McGill scores with ten points to his credit was a continual threat and he time he went up the floor had the blue defence guessing. His methods of dodging the Toronto guards, coupled with brilliant shooting made him the favorite of the the whistle blow Beaumont cleared from a shot and the puck was juggled for a moment by the opposing players some distance in front of the goal-mouth until Reid, janky Queen's wing, secured and shot. Few among those present could vouch whether the disc entered the net or not, but the majority were not backward in voicing their opinion. Heated arguments ensued, although Referee Johnny Sauve ruled immediately that it was a goal.

Godin, U. of M. defenseman, scored a pretty goal from left wing before a minute of the second session had elapsed. Quinn, in the Queen's goal, was made, for the first time, the target for a steady rain of shots. He withstood the attack nobly until near the end of the period when he succumbed to Lafrance. Scarcely had the score been tied when Godin caused another spirited discussion. He shot at Quinn from slightly to left wing and the rubber rebounded like a flash. The red light flashed and Referee Sauve again ruled a goal. Quinn threatened to leave the ice; Coach Bill Hughes, of the Queen's team, rushed out to protest with the officials and play was held up for a few minutes until he became satisfied to abide by the decision, and play was resumed with U. of M. in the lead.

Again at the start of the third period, as in the first, Queen's launched a determined offensive that ended in Reid scoring on a pretty effort as he came through the defence. From then to the end the teams battled on even terms, and overtime was necessary. From the face-off at the commencement of the extra period, Page secured and being forced to round the Queen's net, flipped the puck past Quinn as he came round on the other side. It was that goal that spelt victory and defeat. His second, which followed after the teams changed ends, was unnecessary. The French-Canadian players had an edge on the tiring Kingston players who were weakened on the defence, through the forced retirement of Bellamy, who was injured in the third period. Lindsay was also showing the effects of a rough journey. When Page tricked their outer guard and drew Quinn out it was merely making surer of the sure.

U. of M. have a smart team. All are good skaters and puck-carriers, but while the checking of the forwards, at centre ice, was good, the rear guard was inclined to be shaky. This was their most noticeable fault. President H. Garlepy, of the University of Montreal Athletic Association announced that at a meeting held Friday night it was decided to elect to enter the Allan Cup play-downs from the intercollegiate series. He stated that although they felt that their chances were better of reaching the play-offs through the Mount Royal Intermediate League their first and best efforts were due to intercollegiate sport.

BLUE AND WHITE RALLY IN CLOSING MINUTES

assembled throng. Stan Quackenbush probably turned in the best game of his career. His hard checking on the defence and his lone rushes up the floor fooled his blue-clad opponents many a time and to him must go a large share of the credit for a red and white win.

The smooth working of the McGill forward line was due in no small measure to Benny Sacks who spent the full 40 minutes on the floor without relief. He found the openings and fed the ball to his two team mates and besides found time to net the prettiest basket of the game in addition to two free shots. Lyle Laishley who alternated with Hayden at left forward worked in well. He was always dangerous and possessed a sure shot. Grossman and Errol Amaron both turned in a good game. The red and white captain earned the admiration of the Toronto bench and the crowd for his heady work and teamed well with Quackenbush.

Hutchison of Toronto was the high scorer of the game. The elongated Toronto centre and captain went into the game with a sprained ankle sustained in the game with Queen's at Kingston on Friday evening but despite this handicap he took a lot of watching. Bill Potter another veteran blue and white warrior and his brother C. W. Potter teamed well together on the forward line, and kept the McGill defence worried for the greater part of the game. Sniderman a newcomer to the Queen City team this year proved to be one of the fastest men on the floor. "Bill" Potter, too, was playing under a handicap, having dislocated his little finger at Kingston.

The game marked the first appearance of four red and white players in senior intercollegiate basketball, Sacks, Hayden, Laishley and Weldon making their debut. All turned in stellar performances which bids well for the near future at least. The victory of the red and white coming as it did after Toronto's win over the Queen's in Kingston puts McGill in a good position in the race for the championship laurels.

Pat Manley handled the contest in a most efficient manner. The game was a remarkably clean one when one takes into consideration the speed with which it was maintained throughout. Only one man was disqualified for ex-

WICKSTEED COMPETITION TO TAKE PLACE FEB. 4

Intercollegiate Team Chosen on Showing in This Meet

With three strenuous weeks in the very near future to invite them, the members of the Gymnastic Club are hard at work. On Friday Feb. 4th, the annual Wicksteed Competition takes place, emblematic of the university athletic championship. The evening of Friday Feb. 11th, in the Montreal High gym., will be the time and place of the combined exhibition with the girls of the M. S. P. E. The following week, the team captained by Ray Caron, will travel to Toronto with the firm resolve to bring the championship back to McGill.

The team to represent McGill will be chosen largely from the results of the Wicksteed Ray Caron, deWolfe Mackay and Ned Pacaud are the only remaining members of last year's team, which leaves three places to be filled. The club has been unfortunate this year in not having the services of three experienced men, Consiglio, Davis and Holland who for various reasons cannot compete. However, there are about half a dozen men working hard to gain the three vacant places and a well balanced team will be ready for Toronto on the 19th of next month.

Besides going to the Queen city, six men from McGill have been invited to travel to West Point in March, to compete against the Army team.

The exhibition with the Physical Eds. is the only opportunity that the public will have, this year, of seeing the men at work. Gymnastics is a form of athletics requiring a great deal of hard and continuous practice and it is one of the prettiest to watch. Both Holland and Consiglio will perform as well as the team and one may rest assured that the work seen will be of as great a calibre as Montreal is capable of furnishing.

The event is also noteworthy in that it is the public's opportunity of viewing the M. S. P. E. in action. Once a year at the most do these ladies favor us with an exhibition of their work, which consists of graceful and athletic group dances, interesting games, and healthful exercises, so that the most must be made of the occasion.

cooding the number of personal fouls allowed under the rules.

One of the strange coincidents of the game was the relationship between the numbers worn by the McGill players and the points scored by each man. Hayden, wearing number 10 netted 10 points, Laishley wearing number five had five points to his credit; Quackenbush with number three on the back of his sweater accounted for three points while Amaron wearing number one tallied a lone point.

Each squad netted eight field goals apiece while McGill outscored Toronto by 4 points on free shots obtaining 11 of their 18 attempts when the blue and white netted 7 out of 11 tries.

ROTTEN EGGS AND DISPUTED GOALS

from the spectators' and players' point of view left little to be desired. Every McGill player gave his best. Bob Hayden, who led the McGill scorers with ten points to his credit was a continual threat and every time he went up the floor had the blue defence guessing. His methods of dodging the Toronto guards, coupled with brilliant shooting made him the favorite of the the white blow Beaumont cleared from a shot and the puck was juggled for a moment by the opposing players some distance in front of the goal-mouth until Reid, janky Queen's wing, secured and shot. Few among those present could vouch whether the disc entered the net or not, but the majority were not backward in voicing their opinion. Heated arguments ensued, although Referee Johnny Sauve ruled immediately that it was a goal.

Godin, U. of M. defenseman, scored a pretty goal from left wing before a minute of the second session had elapsed. Quinn, in the Queen's goal, was made, for the first time, the target for a steady rain of shots. He withstood the attack nobly until near the end of the period when he succumbed to Lafrance. Scarcely had the score been tied when Godin caused another spirited discussion. He shot at Quinn from slightly to left wing and the rubber rebounded like a flash. The red light flashed and Referee Sauve again ruled a goal. Quinn threatened to leave the ice; Coach Bill Hughes, of the Queen's team, rushed out to protest with the officials and play was held up for a few minutes until he became satisfied to abide by the decision, and play was resumed with U. of M. in the lead.

Again at the start of the third period, as in the first, Queen's launched a determined offensive that ended in Reid scoring on a pretty effort as he came through the defence. From then to the end the teams battled on even terms, and overtime was necessary.

From the face-off at the commencement of the extra period, Page secured and being forced to round the Queen's net, flipped the puck past Quinn as he came round on the other side. It was that goal that split victory and defeat. His second, which followed after the teams changed ends, was unnecessary. The French-Canadian players had an edge on the three Kingston players who were weakened on the defence, through the forced retirement of Bellamy, who was injured in the third period. Lindsay was also showing the effects of a rough journey. When Page tricked their outer guard and drew Quinn out it was merely making surer of the sure.

U. of M. have a smart team. All are good skaters and puck-carriers, but while the checking of the forwards, at centre ice, was good, the rear guard was inclined to be shaky. This was their most noticeable fault.

President H. Garlepy, of the University of Montreal Athletic Association announced that at a meeting held Friday night it was decided to elect to enter the Allan Cup play-downs from the intercollegiate series. He stated that although they felt that their chances were better of reaching the play-offs through the Mount Royal Intermediate League their first and best efforts were due to intercollegiate sport.

WICKSTEED COMPETITION TO TAKE PLACE FEB. 4

Intercollegiate Team Chosen on Showing in This Meet

With three strenuous weeks in the very near future to invite them, the members of the Gymnastic Club are hard at work. On Friday Feb. 4th, the annual Wicksteed Competition takes place, emblematic of the university athletic championship. The evening of Friday Feb. 11th, in the Montreal High gym., will be the time and place of the combined exhibition with the girls of the M. S. P. E. The following week, the team captained by Ray Caron, will travel to Toronto with the firm resolve to bring the championship back to McGill.

The team to represent McGill will be chosen largely from the results of the Wicksteed Ray Caron, deWolfe Mackay and Ned Pacand are the only remaining members of last year's team, which leaves three places to be filled. The club has been unfortunate this year in not having the services of three experienced men, Consiglio, Davis and Holland who for various reasons cannot compete. However, there are about half a dozen men working hard to gain the three vacant places and a well balanced team will be ready for Toronto on the 19th of next month.

Besides going to the Queen city, six men from McGill have been invited to travel to West Point in March, to compete against the Army team.

The exhibition with the Physical Eds. is the only opportunity that the public will have, this year, of seeing the men at work. Gymnastics is a form of athletics requiring a great deal of hard and continuous practice and it is one of the prettiest to watch. Both Holland and Consiglio will perform as well as the team and one may rest assured that the work seen will be of as great a calibre as Montreal is capable of furnishing.

The event is also noteworthy in that it is the public's opportunity of viewing the M. S. P. E. in action. Once a year at the most do these ladies favor us with an exhibition of their work, which consists of graceful and athletic group dances, interesting games, and healthful exercises, so that the most must be made of the occasion.

ceeding the number of personal fouls allowed under the rules.

One of the strange coincidences of the game was the relationship between the numbers worn by the McGill players and the points scored by each man. Hayden, wearing number 10 netted 10 points, Laishley wearing number five had five points to his credit; Quackenbush with number three on the back of his sweater accounted for three points while Amaron wearing number one tallied a lone point.

Each squad netted eight field goals apiece while McGill outscored Toronto by 4 points on free shots obtaining 11 of their 18 attempts when the blue and white netted 7 out of 11 tries.

"Better let me send you a couple of cans of these new peaches. Mrs. Gay-boy," remarked the grocer. "Your husband will like them."

"The peaches my husband likes," came loud and clear from the other end of the phone, "are in bathing suits not cans."
